No Line-up For Wallowa Reserve

Law Requires Settlers to Be on Land
on Opening Day

The line-up of land seekers for the Wallowa reserve at the land office in La Grande dispersed Monday morning. Forty-one prospective filers took places in the line Sunday night, and had made preparations for a 30 days siege, as the land is not open for entry until October 30. A tent covering a large portion of the sidewalk was erected and occupied over night.

The primary cause of the melting away of the line-up was an outsider who sprang the ruling governing the selection of claims, which reads in substance as follows: "No person will be permitted to gain, or exercise any right whatever, under any occupancy of land prior to September 30, as all such proceedings are forbidden by law."

As the landseeker could not be on his land on the day of opening and holding down the sidewalk in front of the land office at the same time, and further as the city authorities held a line-up for 30 days in front of business houses was a nuisance, a compromise was made, numbers being issued to the landseekers in order of their places in the line. These numbers were turned into the land office and the settlers "biked" for the land.

Little local interest is taken in the opening for although about 35,000 acres are included few desirable locations are in it and nearly all of them have already been squatted on.

34 Successful

Out of the line of 35 who waited for the opening of the Heppner land, 34 were successful in filing on the claim of their choice at La Grande last week. Among the successful ones was Miss M. E. Glidden of this county, who returned to Enterprise and went on to her homestead near Chico the first of the week.

Wedded in Church

Miss Edith M. Foster of Joseph and Mr. G. L. Williams of Josephine county were married in the Christian church of Enterprise, Sunday night at the close of services, by Rev. M. J. Thompson. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside in Josephine county.

Surveys Cut-off

Surveyor A. H. Rudd was over north Monday surveying a cut-off from the Trout creek road to the Aunt flat road through the Bookout place.

Everybody Going to Lostine Fair

Secretary O. F. Mays of the county fair reports prospects bright for a successful exhibition at Lostine Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. If the weather is favorable there will be a large attendance.
